

First Look: Society of Flavor Chemists Flavor Symposium 2014

Trends, history, flavor creation, regulatory issues and more

Cyndie Lipka, (Bell Flavors & Fragrances), Society of Flavor Chemists

The Society of Flavor Chemists, Inc. (SFC) is pleased to announce its upcoming “Flavor Symposium,” to be held October 8–9, 2014. This year’s theme is “State of the Flavor Industry after 60 Years.”

Conference Topics

We are delighted and excited to offer you this theme, which traces 60 years of the history of the SFC. In addition, this year’s symposium will present an expert panel of well-seasoned experts—attendees will be invited to ask questions.

The event will have hands-on workshops in rotation so that all symposium attendees get a chance to participate in each activity. Participants will learn about flavor labeling and compounds with flavor-modifying properties (FMP).

A representative of the Flavor & Extract Manufacturers Association will be on hand to enlighten attendees about the GRAS process and self-affirmation. The event will conclude with a talk about emerging trends from Trendincite. There is, of course, much more to offer.

Attendees

The information presented will be relevant to specialists in the flavor industry, from flavor technicians to certified flavor chemists, and will be useful to those people in supporting functions such as food and beverage technologists and quality scientists. Registration is open to all individuals interested in attending this instructive seminar.

Hotel & Travel

This event will be held at the Liberty Science Center (LSC) in Jersey City, NJ. Our selected hotel is the Sheraton Lincoln Harbor in Weehawken. A negotiated hotel rate has been set for our event, and there is light rail service between the hotel and the LSC. Newark airport is the closest, but LaGuardia is also a good option.
